Kurzbiographie/ short biography	I studied sinology and political science in Göttingen and at the Beijing Foreign Studies University (BFSU) and in 2015 received my MA in sinology and political science from the University of Göttingen.

After internships at the Peace Research Institute Frankfurt (PRIF) and the German Institute of Global and Area Studies (GIGA) I started working as an instructor and doctoral candidate at the Department of East Asian Studies in Göttingen in 2015 and have begun a research project on corruption in China. My research interests include the Chinese Communist Party, ideological debates and the legitimacy of political rule as well as challenges to it.
